

National Free to Speak Campaign Frequently Asked Questions

1. The Free to Speak pamphlet focuses mainly on students. What about teachers' freedom of expression?

Of the seven points quoted in the pamphlet, one addresses teachers' freedom to meet with colleagues for prayer and religious discussions during their free time (such as lunch). As part of the campaign, the letter written by the Alliance Defense Fund (and sent to the school officials you choose) answers six questions commonly asked about teachers' rights.

2. Can I get a copy of the letter the Alliance Defense Fund sends to school officials?

You can designate yourself as one of the people to receive the letter when you order your Free to Speak pamphlets.

3. Where can I find the names and addresses of school officials in my community?

Most schools and school districts have web sites with the information.

4. How should I distribute the pamphlets?

Churches, civic groups, social clubs, and youth organizations are natural places to distribute the pamphlets. If you distribute them through your church you can place one in each bulletin and have extras in the foyer. We recommend that you get ten copies to each student (elementary and secondary) in your church. Encourage them to keep one and give nine to classmates and teachers.

5. Do I need permission to distribute the pamphlets at school?

Students can give the pamphlets to people at school just as they would in any other personal communication. However, mass distribution (for instance, in the hallways) may be subject to school policies regarding distribution of any flyers on campus.

6. Is the National Free to Speak Campaign an attempt to proselytize in public schools?

The Free to Speak pamphlet focuses on the protection of privately initiated religious expression and activities from government interference and discrimination. The pamphlet contains no religious message. To read a sample, click here.
